Jeremy Jarvis appeals the Labor and Industrial Relations Commission's decision denying his claim against the Treasurer of Missouri as Custodian of the Second Injury Fund ("the Fund"). The Commission determined that while Jarvis was permanently and totally disabled, he failed to prove that his preexisting disabilities met the fifty-week permanent partial disability threshold as required pursuant to § 287.220.3, RSMo Supp 2014, to qualify for Fund benefits.

AFFIRMED.

Division Four Holds: The Commission's finding that Jarvis' preexisting disability to his left wrist was not a qualified injury was supported by substantial and competent evidence. The Commission's finding that the preexisting disability to his left wrist injury was essential for Fund liability was supported by sufficient competent evidence.

Opinion by: John P. Torbitzky, P. J.,
Robert M. Clayton III, J., and Michael S. Wright, J., concur.
